

Chain Machine He Says Is Condemned Because of the Dust It Makes. Recommendations Made by the Mine Inspectors.

At a recent meeting of the Eastern Bar Iron Association in this city it was decided to reaffirm prices. The argument presented was that no good would result from a reduction at this time. However, it is reported that some concessions have been made in

Are You a Trust Buster?

Hey—You!
Yes, YOU'RE the man we mean.

You're always talking about the harm the trusts are doing. The country's going to the denudition bowwows, you say, because of the un-curbed trusts. Rich growing richer, poor getting poorer. Used to be that a poor man could go into business for his self in a modest way and make a good living. Now, he must become a clerk or a roundabout or a hodge-podge for some corporation—some combination that has grown to be a Goliath of bigness, that has devoured the fat of the land and is still gouging upon it, till there's not a scrap of bone left for the under dog.

That's your line of talk. You're s'll handing it out, and you're proud of it.

Well, now, let's see: Are YOU a trust buster? YOURSELF?

Didn't you see how you stalk up to the post-office just now and mail a letter with the address of a city Mail Order Store on the envelope? How? Didn't we?

Didn't you know that the Mail Order Store is a trust—dangerous in the crowd? Don't you know and silently and slyly closing the doors of the young men in country towns and small towns? Didn't you know that the Mail Order Trust is a scourge of town and country people by mercilessly cutting down the patronage of the local man who is trying to build up a tiny, antitrust business?

Didn't it all occur to you? (N. B. (who means note well)). Why don't you trade it home just now and help to build up a trust that I warn you is a fine place.

removed notwithstanding several reminders on the part of the present official head of the department.

When the fire department did arrive on the scene, we are further informed that "considerable time was lost in getting water on the building, owing to two frozen links of hose having been placed in the hose line," said those it seems having been loaned to a citizen to clean out a choked sewer and was "supposed" to have been returned in good order. The "supposition," however, was a violent one.

All this emphasizes the observations of The Courier a few days ago concerning the inefficiency of the fire department, chiefly owing to its lack of organization, and of the further neglect to take proper care of the fire department's equipment, owing principally to the absence of individual responsibility for the same. We regret the advisability of frequent inspections of the fire equipment and the importance of making one certain man or set of men responsible for its proper care and its good order when called into active service.

We urge this matter again upon the Town Council. Its supreme importance is too evident for argument. Continued lack of care may result in appalling disaster. "Connellsville has been dead lucky," said an insurance expert recently. We fear he was quite right. Our luck may change. We know not what inopportune moment the hot breath of fiery destruction may breathe its devastating blight upon us if it find us unprepared to ward off its withering effects.

This is no matter for dalliance. It is a situation that demands action.

Chief Rath's bloodhounds suggestion has struck a popular chord that bears back in an ever-increasing chorus.
A citizen of the Park-and-Bloody-Klongated writer to the desk of Justice Sitting. Unintentionally detaining not only bloodhounds but at a State Constitutes, for use in suppressing crime in the lower Connellsville coke region.

The Fayette Principal's Round Table
save Connellsville a Square Deal.

Governor Stuart will get better acquainted with the executive offices of Pennsylvania tonight. He will find them as honest and logical bunch, and if he is wise he will recognize the fact that they are the backbone of a great deal of Pennsylvania's sentiment.

If the Pennsylvania editors are wise they will discuss the publication of the laws with the Governor this evening.
They will be able, if they desire, to show to him that the proposals to this end were animated by public spirit rather than by private graft.

It is announced that the Town Council will meet tonight, but even John W. Gates isn't betting on it.

The Monongahela is over, but the dead bodies continue to be brought from the pit. We presume that the inquiry concerning them will be dismised with the official explanation of "false death." The conclusion is inevitable.

The farmers' union agrees that the women are better than they look today. They were in the past, but last night they were not. They look like monsters. This verdict is most diplomatic.

The "bum" question is even more perplexing to the Connellsville authorities than the "Ritual" question.

There is a reported scarcity of labor in the coke region. The Army of the Connellsville who must do the coke ovens over night get a regular steady job filling them up and emptying them.

The unlicensed vendors of Italian household furniture, the "furniture" liquors are not subject to domestic regulation.

The man who carried dynamite in his pocket, attached to his arm, for using it unlawfully. He may not have carried it unlawfully when he carried it in this case, but he certainly carried it recklessly.

Thanks to Hobson's Choice.

Pennsylvania for the past few to a third term. "The Boy" is playing in great luck. Pennsylvania is weary of political storms so weary that the efforts of William Penn to create another independent division bid fair to prove utterly futile.

NEWS OF SCOTTDAL.

Elevator Drops in Hardware Store Injuring John F. Eicher.

Mrs. Lida Hutchinson Dead.

Family Long Residents of Lower Tyne Township—Death Was Caused by an Attack of the Grip and Pneumonia.

SCOTTDAL, Jan. 21.—There were a few moments of excitement in the hardware store of Eicher & Graft, about 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon, when the rope holding the balancing weight of the elevator broke, allowing the elevator to drop from the second floor to the basement. John F. Eicher was operating the elevator at the time and his efforts to stop its descent by holding the operating rope lessened his hands badly. Otherwise no damage was done.

Mrs. Lida Hutchinson died at her home on High street last night after a lingering illness of several weeks from grip and pneumonia. She was 74 years of age and is survived by six children, among the number being Mrs. C. H. Eicher and Mrs. Lewellyn Jones of town. The Hutchinson family was for many years prominent residents of Lower Tyne township. The funeral will be held Thursday morning at 10 o'clock from the residence on High street. Interment in Cochran cemetery.

Mrs. S. C. Stevenson was called to Swidsville yesterday afternoon on account of the illness of a child of her son, J. E. Stevenson.

M. C. Hutchinson of Anita, Iowa, and Joseph Hutchinson of Monponsett, Ill., came here yesterday to visit their mother, Mrs. Lida Hutchinson, who has been very ill.

Carlisle Hanes was home from the Carnegie Technical School in Pittsburgh for several days visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. M. L. Hanes. Albert Keister was a business visitor to Pittsburgh yesterday.

The late Mrs. Annie Moore of Evanson held insurance in the local office of the Ladies of the Maccabees, and yesterday the officials of that order turned over to her beneficiaries a check for $250, the amount of the policy carried. Mrs. Moore died on January 2, and the check was received here on Saturday evening.

The gas light at the corner of the borough building which had been ordered placed there some months ago has at last been put in commission. To improve the lighting service of that part of town, the arc light that had been formerly located there was moved to the corner of Everson avenue and Short street. A gas light has been placed at both the front and rear corners of the borough building, the latter having been moved out over the sidewalk from the former location immediately over the lockup door.

The Scottdale friends of George D. Grazioplene were sorry to hear of his misfortune. While engaged in some work about a saw mill on the farm of his father at Warriors Mark, Pa., he had the misfortune to slip and fall against the saw in such a manner that his left hand was badly mangled. Amputation proved to be necessary. Mr. Grazioplene is a son of C. Grazioplene, formerly of Scottdale, but now an extensive farmer near Warriors Mark.

Mrs. J. T. Bradley has been critically ill at her home on Pittsburgh street for several days. The trouble began with a cold and has developed into a serious affection of the throat. Her condition has been grave for several days with very little show of improvement.

Rev. and Mrs. W. C. Weaver spent yesterday afternoon visiting friends in Pittsburgh.

Mr. and Mrs. H. D. Jarrett and Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Jarrett of town, accompanied by J. E. Jarrett, Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Jarrett of Pittsburgh were in Uniontown yesterday afternoon attending the funeral of Mrs. Sarah Murray.

The members of the Anti-Cigarette League enjoyed a social in the lecture room of the Baptist church last night from 7:30 to 9 o'clock. Rev. B. C. Kunkle, pastor of the church, is the superintendent of the league and had a fine program of entertainment for the boys, the program including refreshments. The league is in a flourishing condition.

Rev. L. Keister, P. D., President of Lebanon Valley College, Annville, Pa., was here yesterday afternoon visiting his brother, A. L. Keister.

Bon A. Winer of town has been appointed administrator of the estate of the late Lloyd Gynn, who died on January 13 at Trottlev. Bond was given for $2,700, with F. P. Rush of Uniontown and William Hay of Everson as sureties.

SCOTTDAL, Jan. 20.—The first annual memorial service to the Volunteer Fire Company was preached Sunday morning in the Baptist church by the pastor, Rev. B. C. Kunkle. About 40 of the members, dressed in full uniform, were in attendance. During the course of the sermon Rev. Kunkle commended the members for the interest they have taken in the organization and the efforts they have put forth to protect property. The company was organized on July 8, 1886, with 23 members and one chemical engine. The company now numbers 66 members, is equipped with two chemical engines, five hose reels with 5,000 feet of hose, a hook and ladder truck and two extinguishers. The equipment is housed in three separate buildings in different parts of the town. There is a special company for each part of the equipment, and each company is properly officered, while each man has a special position for work. There are the customary general officers, and the department is in excellent shape.

This evening Rev. W. C. Weaver, Ph. D., pastor of the M. E. church, began a series of sermons on the Prodigal Son, which will continue throughout the week. The subject for Monday evening was "The Prodigal Going Away From Home," Tuesday evening, "The Prodigal's Losses," Wednesday evening, "The Prodigal in the Far Country," Thursday, "The Prodigal Coming to Himself," Friday, "The Prodigal's Resolve," Sunday, "The Prodigal Coming Home." These sermons will be delivered in connection with the revival services that are being held in the church.

The annual congregational business meeting of the Baptist church will be held in the church building on Wednesday evening of this week. The meeting will be preceded by a picnic lunch at the church. All the members are invited to be at the church at 8:30 o'clock with their lunch baskets and spend the time from that hour until 8 o'clock in a social manner and then the social session will begin.

The revival services in the United Brethren church will be continued each evening during the week at 7:30 o'clock. Much interest is being aroused in these meetings.

The funeral of the late C. W. King was held in the U. B. church Sunday afternoon, and the building was crowded with relatives and friends. Mr. King was widely and favorably known.

Miss Bertha Todd spent Sunday with friends in Pittsburg.

Leone Bennett of Farmington, O., was called here on Saturday by the illness of his mother, Mrs. Sara Barnum. Mr. Barnum had been a mill worker in town for many years, but moved on a farm in Ohio last spring.

Miss May Parker, a student at Wooster University, Wooster, O., came home on Saturday to spend a week or two with her father, J. S. Parker.

Miss Parker had a severe attack of grip since returning to school after the holiday vacation and was advised to come home for a few weeks.

S. L. Porter was a business visitor to Pittsburgh on Saturday.

G. F. Kelly was in Pittsburgh on Saturday on a business mission.

Ralph Overhol of Pittsburgh came out on Saturday evening to spend Sunday with his mother, Mrs. A. S. R. Overholt, at West Overton.

Coke is being drawn today from the 150 ovens fired Saturday at the Valley view of the H. C. Pink Coke Company. The entire plant had been closed for several weeks.

HANTMAN'S SHOW

At Magic Land This Week is Packing Little Theatre, So Go in the Afternoon.

Sam Hantman is playing with the S. R. O. Show at this week at Magic Land. He has a bill that packed the little theatre at all three performances last night. Five of the acts—that's all of them—are headliners. Part of the matter is that Magic Land has outgrown the old-fashioned idea. It's no longer a "store show." It is a real show, a real vaudeville house. This week the bill is the real, genuine, show pure advanced vaudeville. So Sam Hantman's press agent says.

In the bill this week are Mr. and Mrs. Nick Huchos, comedy sketch artists; James Leslie and Lillie Adams in "Show Folks;" George Atkinson, singing and dancing comedian; Paul La Dine in the "Duffy Dams;" and lastly, to the delight of Magic Land patrons, our own Pearl Davidson, without whom no show at the Magic Land would be complete. Last night's audiences expressed themselves by repeated encores.

Since the night shows this week will be crowded, Manager Hantman suggests that as many of the women and children as possible should attend the afternoon performances.

VETERANS' BANQUET.

Second Annual Affair of Frick Men to Be Held in Marshall Hall February 12.

The Frick Veterans' Association will hold their second annual reception in Marshall Hall Wednesday evening, February 12, beginning at 8 o'clock. The banquet was held last year in January and was a most enjoyable and fashionable affair.

Practically all heads of departments of the company were present at the reception, including Thomas Lynch, President of the H. C. Frick Coke Company. Many interesting addresses were delivered, after which a banquet was served and dancing and cards enjoyed.

The committee in charge of the reception is: W. C. Mullen, D. M. Piggman and J. A. Barnhart.

BACK FROM SOUTH.

Connellsville Sportsmen Had Good Luck in South Carolina.

George and J. C. Munson, Anthony Bruckner and Frank Bradford, are home from a two weeks' hunt in the forests and fields of South Carolina. The men had exceptionally good weather and good luck while on the trip. Quail are particularly plentiful in that State, and the men secured good bunches of them each day they went shooting.

The ideal weather made the trip a most pleasant and enjoyable one.

Pushing Out Winter Goods Startling Bargains

Greatest opportunity thus far in the history of the Union Supply Company. Remnants and odd lots in every department, many unbroken lines of Men's, Women's and Children's clothing, all being pushed out at startling reductions. You have been reading about the bargains for several weeks and if you have not joined the throng of purchasers it is time to get in line. For the balance of this month there will be special additional cut, making the bargains the greatest yet offered.

Startling Bargains in the Shoe Departments

The extraordinary reductions, the usual values, the general desirability of the goods, and the great variety you have to select from in these line stocks will justify you in coming any distance to avail yourself of the opportunity. The stock of Women's and Misses' Dress Shoes is large, the depression has made business backward and we are going to close them out. Stocks must be reduced and if you have any money you cannot invest it better.

WOMAN'S BACKACHE

The back is the mainspring of woman's organism. It quickly calls attention to trouble by aching. It tells, with other symptoms, such as nervousness, headache, pains in the loins, weight in the lower part of the body, that a woman's feminine organism needs immediate attention.

LYDIA E. PINKHAM'S VEGETABLE COMPOUND

Mrs. Will Young, of 6 Columbia Ave., Rockland, Me., says: "I was troubled for a long time with dreadful backaches and a pain in my side, and was miserable in every way. I doctored until I was discouraged and thought I would never get well. From what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound had done for others, I decided to try it; after taking three bottles I can truly say that I never felt so well in my life."

Mrs. Augustus Lyon, of East Earl Pa., writes to Mrs. Pinkham: "I had very severe backaches, and pressing-down pains. I could not sleep. I had no appetite. I was very nervous. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound cured me and made me feel like a new woman."

FACTS FOR SICK WOMEN

For thirty years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, has been the standard remedy for female ailments and has positively cured thousands of women who have been troubled with displacements, inflammation, ulcers, tumors, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, that bearing-down feeling, indigestion, flatulency, dizziness, nervous prostration.

Unable to Digest THE FOOD.

The digestive system is a wonderful piece of machinery, but power is necessary to make it effective.

The power, in this case, is the nerve force and with the nerves exhausted the digestive system becomes hopelessly clogged. There is indigestion, headache, neuralgia, pains and spells of weakness, dizziness and discouragement. Strength cannot be regained unless the food you eat is properly digested by you.

Dr. A. W. Chase's Nerve Pills

This great prescription of the famous Robert Chase, M. D., Dr. A. W. Chase, M. D., leads into the feeble woman nerve energy and strength, reaches the blood, invigorates the nerves which control the stomach, sharpens the appetite and builds up the system in Nature's way. 50 cts. a box, all dealers or Dr. A. W. Chase Medicine Co., Buffalo, N. Y.

Mr. S. M. Wheeler, the well-known Electrical Engineer of Tuscorora St., Addison, N. Y., states:

"I consider Dr. A. W. Chase's Nerve Pills a great success in nervous dyspepsia. I was troubled for ten years and never found any treatment so wonderfully rapid and good in effect. The stomach is strong now, and I eat what I please and enjoy it."

THE VALUE OF PERSONAL KNOWLEDGE

Personal knowledge is the winning factor in the culminating contests of this competitive age and when of ample character it places its fortunate possessor in the front ranks of

The Well Informed of the World.

A vast fund of personal knowledge is really essential to the achievement of the highest excellence in any field of human effort.

A Knowledge of Forms, Knowledge of Functions and Knowledge of Products are all of the utmost value and in question of life and health when a true and wholesome remedy is desired it should be remembered that Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna, manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co., is an elixir product which has met with the approval of the most eminent physicians and gives universal satisfaction, because it is a remedy of Known Quality, Known Excellence and Known Component Parts and has won the valuable patronage of millions of the Well Informed of the world, who know of their own personal knowledge and from actual use that it is the first and best of family laxatives, for which no extravagant or unreasonable claims are made.

This valuable remedy has been long and favorably known under the name of—Syrup of Figs—and has attained to world-wide acceptance as the most excellent family laxative. As its pure laxative principles, obtained from Senna, are well known to physicians and the Well Informed of the world to be the best we have adopted the more elaborate name of—Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna—as more fully descriptive of the remedy, but doubtless it will always be called for by the shorter name of—Syrup of Figs—and to get its beneficial effects, always note, when purchasing the full name of the Company—California Fig Syrup Co.—printed on the front of every package, whether you call for—Syrup of Figs—or by the full name—Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna.

"One of those contemptible, parasitic leeches," persisted Mortimer, getting redder and hoarser, "who live on men like you. Confound you, Plank, what the devil do you mean by it?"

"Mortimer, are you crazy to talk to me like that?"

"No, I'm not, but you must be! I've a mind to drop the whole cursed business! I've every inclination to drop it! If you haven't horse sense enough—if you haven't innate delicacy sufficient to keep you from making such a break!"

"I didn't. It wasn't a break, Mortimer. I wouldn't have hurt you." "You did hurt me! How can I feel the same again? I never imagined you thought I was that sort of a social mercenary. Why, so little did I dream that you looked on our friendship in that light that I was—on my word of honor—was just about on the point of asking you for $10,000 or $15,000 to carry me to the month's end and square my bridge balance."

"Mortimer, you must take it! You are a fool to think I meant anything by saying I wanted to show my gratitude. Look here, he doesn't care for me. I wouldn't offer you an affront—would I—even if I were a cad? I wouldn't do it now just when you're getting things into shape for me. I'm not a fool anyway. This is in deadly earnest, I tell you, Mortimer, and I'm getting angry about it. You've got to show your gratitude to me. You've got to take what you want from me as you would from any friend."

There was a pause. A curious and unaccustomed sensation had silenced Mortimer, something almost akin to shame. It astonished him a little. He did not quite understand why in the very moment of success over this stolid, shrewd young man and his thrifty Dutch instincts he should feel uncomfortable. Were not his services worth something? Had he not earned at least the right to borrow from this rich man who could afford to pay for what was done for him? Why should he feel ashamed? He had not been treacherous; he really liked the fellow. Why shouldn't he take his money?

"See here, old man," said Plank, extending a huge highly colored hand, "I'll square between us right now. I think so," muttered Mortimer.

But Plank would not relinquish his hand. "Then tell me how to draw that check! Great heaven, Mortimer, what is friendship, anyhow, if it doesn't include little matters like this—little misunderstandings like this? I'm the man to be sensitive, not you. You have been very good to me, Mortimer. I could almost wish you in a position where the only thing I possess might square something of my debt to you."

A few minutes later while he was flinging the check a dusty rout in "wing" clothes and spurs came in and found a seat by one of the windows, into which he dropped, and then looked about him for a servant.

"Hello, Fleetwood!" said Mortimer, glancing over his shoulder to see whose spurs were ringing on the polished floor.

Fleetwood saluted amiably with his riding crop, including Plank, whom he did not know, in a more formal salute.

"Will you join us?" asked Mortimer, taking the check which Plank offered and carelessly pocketing it without even a nod of thanks. "You know Beverly Plank, of course? What? I thought everybody knew Beverly Plank."

Mr. Fleetwood and Mr. Plank shook hands and resumed their seats.

"Rippling weather!" observed Fleetwood, replacing his hat and rebuttoning the gloves which he had removed to shake hands with Plank. "Lot of folks out this morning. I say, Mortimer, do you want that roan hunter of mine you looked over? I mean King Dermid, because Marlowe Page wants him if you don't. She was out this morning, and she spoke of it again."

Mortimer, lifting a replenished glass, shook his head and drank thirstily in silence.

"Saw you at Westbury, I think," said Fleetwood politely to Plank as the two lifted their glasses to one another.

"I hunted there for a day or two," replied Plank modestly. "It's that big Irish thoroughbred you were riding that you want to sell, I'd like a look in it Miss Page doesn't fancy him."

Fleetwood laughed and glanced amusedly at Plank over his glass. "I don't think so, Mr. Plank. That's Drumsell, Stephen Steward's famous horse." He interpreted himself to exchange greetings with several men who came into the room rather noisily, their spurs resounding across the oak floor. One of them, Tom O'Hara, joined them, slung his crop on the desk beside Plank and spreading himself out over an armchair, from the seat of which he forcibly removed Mortimer's feet without excuse.

"Drink? Of course I want a drink," he replied feebly to Fleetwood—"one, then, ten, several. Billy, whose wince belied the fact that you were kicking your heels into the park? Some of the squadron men asked me—the major. Oh, beg pardon! Didn't know you were trying to stick Mortimer with him. He might do for the troop ambulance—inside. What? Oh, yes; met Mr. Black—I mean Mr. Plank—at Shotover, I think. How d'ye do? Find the pleasure of noting your tame pheasants. Rotten sport, you know. What do you do for Mr. Plank?"

"What did you come for if it's rotten sport?" asked Plank so simply that it took O'Hara a moment to realize he had been snubbed.

"I didn't mean to be offensive," he drawled.

"I suppose you can't help it," said Plank very gently. "Some people can't, you know." And there was another silence, broken by Mortimer, whose entire bulk was flung with a mixture of surprise and amusement over his protegee's developing ability to take care of himself. "Did you say that Stephen Steward is in Westbury, Billy?"

"No, he's in town," replied Fleetwood. "I took his horses up to hunt with. He isn't hunting, you know."

"I didn't know. Nobody ever sees him anywhere," said Mortimer. "I guess his mother's death cut him up."

Fleetwood lifted his empty glass and gently shook the ice in it. "That, and the other business—is enough to cut any man up, isn't it?"

"You mean the action of the Lenox club?" asked Plank seriously.

"Yes. He's resigned from this club, too, I hear. Somebody told me that he had made a clean sweep of all his clubs. That's foolish. A man may be an ass to join too many clubs, but he's always a fool to resign from any of 'em. You ask the weatherwise what resigning from a club forecasts. It's the first ominous sign in a young man's career."

Under cover of a rapid fire exchange of pleasantries between Fleetwood and O'Hara, Plank turned to Mortimer, hesitating:

"I rather liked Steward when I met him at Shotover," he ventured. "I'm very sorry he's down and out."

"He drinks," shrugged Mortimer, diluting his mineral water with Irish whisky. "He can't let it alone. He's like all the Stewards."

"Mortimer doesn't care for Steward, but he's an awfully good fellow, all the same," said Fleetwood, turning to Plank. "He's been an ass, but who hasn't? I like him tremendously, and I feel very bad over the mess he made of it after that crazy dinner I gave in my rooms. What? You hadn't heard of it? Way, man, it's the talk of the club."

"I suppose that is why I haven't heard," said Plank simply. "My club life is still in the future."

"Oh!" said Fleetwood, with an involuntary stare, surprised, a trifle uncomfortable, yet somehow liking Plank, and not understanding why.

Mortimer continued his drollest discussion with O'Hara concerning a very private dinner which somebody told somebody that somebody had given to Quarrier and the Intercounty Electric people, which, if true, plainly indicated who was financing the Intercounty scheme and why Amalgamated stock had tumbled again yesterday.

What might be looked for from the Algonquin Trust company's president.

"Amalgamated Electric doesn't seem to like it a little bit," said O'Hara. "For all that, Belweather and Steward are in it up to their necks, and if Quarrier is really the god in the machine and if he really is doing stunts with Amalgamated Electric and is also mixing feet with the Intercounty crowd, why, he is virtually paralyzing his own road, and why, in the name of common sense, is he doing that? He'll kill it, that's what he'll do."

"He can afford to kill it," observed Mortimer, pinching the electric buttons and making a significant gesture toward his empty glass as the servant entered. "A man like Quarrier can afford to kill anything."

"Yes, but why kill Amalgamated Electric? Why not merge? Why, it's a crazy thing to do; it's a devil of a thing to do, to parallel your own line," insisted O'Hara. "That is dirty work. People don't do such things these days. Nobody tears up dollar bills for the pleasure of tearing."

"Nobody knows what Quarrier will do," muttered Mortimer, who had tried hard enough to find out when the first ominous rumors arose, concerning Amalgamated, and the first fractional declines left the street speechless and stupefied.

O'Hara sat frowning and fingering his glass. "As a matter of fact," he said, "a little cold logic shows us that Quarrier isn't in it at all. No sane man would ruin his own enterprise when there is no need to. His people are openly supporting Amalgamated and hummering Intercounty, and besides, there's Ferrall in it, and Mrs. Ferrall is Quarrier's cousin; and there's Belweather in it, and Quarrier is engaged to marry Sylvia Landis, who is Belweather's niece. It's a scrap with Harrington's crowd, and the wheels inside of wheels are like Chinese boxes. Who knows what it means? Only if Quarrier wants it to be. And unless he does he's crazy."

Mortimer, waiting sideways at Plank and seeing him still occupied with Fleetwood, turned bluntly on O'Hara:

"See here, what do you mean by being nasty to Plank?" he growled. "I'm backing him. Do you understand?"

"It is curious," mused O'Hara contently, "how much of a end a fairly decent man can be when he's out of temper."

"You mean Plank or me?" demanded Mortimer, ducking angrily.

"No, I mean myself. I'm not that way usually. I took him for a humbug, and he's caught me with the goods on. I've been thinking that the man who bores with such questions are usually open to suspicion themselves. Watch and do the civil now. I'm ashamed of myself."

"Wait a moment. Will you be civil enough to do something for him at the Patrons? That will mean something."

"Is he up? Yes, I will," and, turning in his chair, he said to Plank: "Awfully sorry I acted like a humbug just now after having accepted your hospitality at the Fells. I did mean to be offensive, and I'm sorry for that too. Hope you'll overlook it and be friendly."

Plank's face took on the dark red hue of embarrassment. He looked questioningly at Mortimer, who remained noncommittal, then directly at O'Hara.

"I should be very glad to be friends with you," he said, with an ingenuous dignity that surprised Mortimer. It was only the native simplicity of the man, veneered and polished by constant contact with the world, and now showing to advantage in the grain. And it gratified Mortimer, because he saw that it was going to make many matters much easier for himself and his protegee.

The tall glasses were filled and drained again before they departed to the cold plunge and dressing rooms above, whence presently they emerged in street garb to drive downtown and lunch together at the Lenox club, Plank as Fleetwood's guest.

Having O'Hara and Fleetwood to give him countenance, Mortimer managed to make Plank known personally to several governors of the club and to a dozen members, then left him to his fate, whence presently Fleetwood and O'Hara extracted him, late at that moment being personified by a gorgeous old gentleman, one Peter Calloway, who divided with Major Belweather the distinction of being the club bore, and together they piloted him to the billiard room, where he beat them handsily for a dollar at a point at everything they suggested.

You play almost as pretty a game as Stephen Steward used to play," said O'Hara cordially. "You've something of his cue movement—something of his infernal facility and touch. Haven't he, Fleetwood?"

"I wish Steward were back here," said Fleetwood thoughtfully, returning his cue to his valet. "I wonder what he does with himself—where he keeps himself all the while? What the devil is there for a man to do if he doesn't do anything? He's not going out anywhere since his mother's death. He has no clubs to go to, I understand. What does he do—go to the office and come back and sit in that shabby old brick house all day and blink at the bum portraits of his barn and distinguished ancestor?"

For awhile they talked of Steward, and of his unfortunate story and the pity of it, and when the two men ceased:

"Do you know," said Plank mildly, "I don't believe he ever did it."

O'Hara looked up surprised, then shrugged. "Unfortunately he doesn't deny it, you see."

"I heard," said Fleetwood, lighting a cigarette, "that he did it any time he said, no matter what his condition was, he couldn't have done it. If he had been sober the governors would have been bound to take his word of honor. But he couldn't give that, you see. And after they pointed out to him that he had been in no condition to know exactly what he did do, he shut up. And they dropped him, and he's falling yet."

"Lord! I wish Steward were back here. He was a good deal of a man, after all, Tom."

They were unconsciously using the past tense in discussing Steward, as though he were dead, at her physical or socially.

"In one way he was always a singularly decent man," mused O'Hara. "How exactly do you mean?"

"Oh, about women."

"I believe it too. If he did take that Vase girl into the Patrons it was his fault with her, and I believe his fault with any woman. He was awfully decent that way. He was, indeed. And now look at the reputation he has. Isn't it funny? Isn't it, now?"

"What sort of an effort do you suppose all this business is going to have on Steward?"

"It's had one effect already," replied Fleetwood. "Ferrall says he looks sick, and Belweather says he's going to the devil, but that's the sort of thing the major is likely to say. By the way, wasn't there something between that pretty Laura girl and Steward? Somebody—some gossiping somebody—talked about it somewhere recently."

"I don't believe that, either," said Plank in his heavy, measured, passionless voice as they descended the steps of the white portico and looked around for a cab.

"As for me, I've got to be sure," observed O'Hara, clenching at his wrist. "I'm due to shine at a function about 5. Are you coming up town, either or you fellows? I'll give you a lift as far as Seventy-second street, Plank."

"Tell you what we'll do," said Fleetwood, impulsively, turning to Plank. "We'll drive downtown, you and I, and we'll look up poor old Steward. Shall we? He's probably all alone in that God forsaken red brick family tomb. Shall we? How about it, Plank?"

SERIOUS CHARGE

Made Against Cheat Haven Italian by Woman Who Formerly Resided in Connelville.

POINT MARION, Jan. 20.—Joe Votto of Cheat Haven was tried in Judge Frankenberg's court for attempted rape on Mrs. Helen Vudalis of the same place. According to the testimony, Mr. and Mrs. Valentine Vudalis were married in Connelville about six months ago, but have been boarding at Cheat Haven for about two months. At the house where they stayed lived Joe Votto. Mrs. Vudalis testified that last Thursday morning her husband left home about 3 o'clock to go to work at the Cheat Haven mines. Shortly after he left the defendant appeared in her room, but she drove him away.

When her husband returned he was told about the circumstances and on Friday a warrant was sworn out before the Squire for Votto on the charge of attempted rape. Constable Frank Edwards placed Votto under arrest and lined him up in jail the same evening. After hearing the evidence the prisoner was held under $1,000 bail to appear at the March term of court. As bail could not be furnished, he was taken to Uniontown to await trial. Votto is an old offender, and when told by the squire he would be sent to jail, he said he did not care. Mrs. Vudalis speaks English, as she attended the public schools, while her husband can speak and understand but little of our language.

B. & O. EXTENSION.

Survey for Improvement in Point Marion Territory.

It is understood that the B. & O. engineers who were in Point Marion last week will run a line up Cheat river on this side to the mine recently opened by the South Connelville Coal Company, opposite Cheat Haven. This branch was contemplated some time ago but later given up. The company would much prefer to get the coal out the way than to carry it across the river on a wire.

About two weeks ago the same engineers surveyed a line from Downing siding down the river through the Downing property as far as Camp Carey. This was run for the Sherrick Coal Company of Connelville, who will open that field this summer and build about 100 acres.

Over 1000 Stylish Suits and Overcoats Go On Sale Wednesday, Jan. 15

And You Can't Pay More Than $15.00 for any Suit or Overcoat in the Store

Think of it. Over a thousand garments to choose from. Not one single one of them but that is brand new. The very newest fabrics fashioned by craftsmen who understand the finer phases of tailoring. These garments present all the newest style kinks and every one made of dependable material. The products of such houses as Alfred Benjamin of New York and Michaels, Stearn of Rochester, is the sort of clothing we offer you. Close fitting collars and concave shoulders give every Wright-Metzler garment a style that is not often found in ready-for-service clothes. Year after year we demonstrate the absolute superiority of our clothing. We clothe most of the stylish dressers in this country, that ought to be proof sufficient as to the correctness of these garments. All suits formerly priced to $17.50 at $10.00 and from $17.50 to $25.00 at $15.00 is the prices you are now asked to pay for clothing that unquestionably deserves the popularity it has gained.
